WINNIPEG, July 18.

In the Tarte charges enquiry on Friday, July 18, Valin, ex-M. P. and ex-chairman of the Quebec harbor commissioners told how unmarked cheques of Larkin, Connolly & Co., had been substituted for certified cheques held as security for carrying out their contract. It was done at the request of Thomas McGreevey whose directions he had been instructed by Langevin always to follow. McGreevey gave Valin $1,500 to defray election expenses. Being asked for more McGreevey said that Langevin, Caron and other ministers got so much that there was none left. Valin said he had been promised a senatorship but didn't get it. Julien Chabot affirmed that Thomas McGreevey owned the steamer Admiral, which for eight years past got an annual subsidy of $12,500 for carrying mails on the St. Lawrence.

In the Tarte charges investigation it was shown that the Quebec dredging inspectors got regular salaries and percentages for certifying to work never done. The exact amounts stolen cannot be ascertained, but it is estimated to reach hundreds of thousands, divided between the contractors and five or more inspectors. The latter are alleged to have got $25,000. Thomas McGreevey got $6,000 stock in the Bate des Chaleurs railway for travelling expenses. Robert McGreevey told the inside workings of the firm of Larkin, Connolly & Co. of which his brother Thomas the member got $50,000 for securing for the firm the contract for the cross wall and Levis dock, besides minor sums for minor matters. The firm subscribed many thousands of dollars towards elections. His brother Thomas always arranged matters with Langevin. Engineer Perley got $2,000 besides the jewellery given by Murphy.

The prohibition of sealing in Behring's sea has not prevented the landing of 18,000 skins in Victoria, B. C. already this season. The enterprising sailors and sealers of the Capital of the Pacific province may evidently be trusted to keep pretty near even on the seal question. More power to them.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, JULY 25, 1891.

A QUESTION OF MAJORITY.

The revelations now in progress at Ottawa regarding the hoodlum transactions of certain members of the government, officials and contractors are simply astounding to the majority of the electors, the government have for years, and years past, after election rested secure in the comfortable belief that whatever else might become of the money paid in taxes, at all events it was not stolen by the servants of the people, whether high or low. It is now plain that large amounts were stolen, and what was even worse a great deal of the money was used to further corrupt the public service and to carry the elections that hitherto were supposed to have been carried by the influence of the old flag, the old leader and the old policy.

All will agree that this hoodlum business is a bad business in every way for the honest men of the country, who form the large majority of the people and whose toll with hand and brain supplied the money which was distributed in the country. It is a good thing that it has been found out, and the parties concerned are brought to justice. This will mean a saving of many thousands of dollars of the tax payers' money, it will mean increased efficiency in the public service and greater freedom in the expression of what is actually public opinion at elections. The question is naturally asked how is it that matters were allowed to run in such an unprofitable groove for so long and how is it that only now is this carnival of corruption being brought to an end? This is a free country, in which the people govern. How was it that they allowed themselves to be so unmercifully fleeced for so many years? The reason was that ever since 1873 the people reposed so much confidence in the government—gave it such a large majority that the opposition was too weak to force the government to these questions. At the recent elections the opposition was considerably strengthened and the government correspondingly weakened. Consequently the opposition was in a position to force the government to take notice of the abuses which had grown out of too long and undisturbed a lease of what amounted to absolute power.

Right here is a point worthy the attention of every intelligent elector. At every election it is urged on behalf of the government candidate that whatever he may lack, or whatever his opponent may have in the way of ability or fitness for the position, the mere fact that he is the candidate of the party in power—the party which controls the public purse—proves that he must necessarily be able to do more for his constituents and for his country if elected than his opponent, who being in opposition would necessarily have no control over, and would receive no assistance from those who had the power to do good or harm to the people of the constituency. Such doctrine is utterly false and pernicious, tending to destroy the confidence of representative institutions and making popular government a farce. Without going into a long argument to prove that this is the case it need only be pointed out that had the number of opposition members not been increased at the last election the reign of corruption at Ottawa would have continued unbroken. To the opposition is due the credit of bringing this hoodlum system to an end, and therefore to each single member of the opposition is due greater credit than to any single supporter of the government whose business as a supporter necessarily was to justify or cloak all wrong doing on its part. The respective usefulness of a supporter of the government and of the opposition varies with the occasion, and of the exigencies of each particular occasion each elector should be his own judge.

It is expected that owners of the Newfoundland lobster canneries recently closed by the British government will be compensated.

THE OTTAWA SCANDALS.

Sir Hector Langevin has become tired of being the scapegoat for the sins of the administration. In a recent article his organ, La Canada, practically admits the charges of corruption and his department still charges that other departments are still worse. The editorial says—"Nepotism, favoritism, malversation, speculation, injustice, and they are the order of the day. The financial crisis of the department of public works has just succumbed, and yet that department is comparatively a model of administration. Let us look around, let us take a scrupulous eye on those departments which admit lessers to their advancement to petticed influence or other unmentionable means. There we find officials installed deep rooted with all its equipments. It is made of the situation. The rightful owners of the crown are crushed, left hanging there who are not in its favorites. It leaves everywhere its hideous traces; it reigns by corruption, it lives for pillage, it delights in injustice, it is anarchy. That is the curse which rules certain ministers of state. That is the cursed system which takes root in the offices of state, thanks to certain incapable ministers unable to see what is patent to every eye. We have the organization, the biens, the biens! It is that organization on another footing but equally corrupt, and equally rootless. They attack themselves to their victims with the tenacity and courage of the wasp. They begin by attacking the property, a division of the profits, and in the end threaten with bribery and fraud. If the former means are not successful, we write these lines in the greatest sang froid and knowing perfectly the weight of our accusations. We confine ourselves to talk to generalities; later we will enter to details."

Perley, chief engineer of the public works department has resigned—by request. In 1887, after the fire at Quebec, a stock had been raised on which Lord Lansdowne & Co. had made a large sum, and divided up so liberally, in consideration of Mr. Perley's valuable assistance in this work of grace, Mr. Murphy visited his home and insisted on his acceptance and token of appreciation. Perley was virtually indignant—but kept the present, the same being plate and jewelry of the value of $185. He afterwards asked Murphy for the bill and got it. He then sent it to Michael Connolly. The repayment was in the shape of an I.O.U. due on August 31st next. Unfortunately for Mr. Perley, he did not give the I.O.U. until ten days after getting the bill. In the meantime the Tarts changes had been made, while it only became due after he and all concerned no doubt fully expected that the matter would have blown over, so many like minor cases had now occurred before. The pitcher went to the wall once too often.

Burgess, deputy minister of interior has resigned—by request. The immediate cause was the coming out of the fact that some months ago he ordered that $100 cheque due a certain clerk in his department for overtime work be paid to that clerk for $200. The underwriting being that the man should pay the extra $100 to Burgess. Burgess' explanation (?) is that the extra $100 was to pay his father in law for work done for the department before coming to Ottawa in the public accounts that he had employed so many of his relatives. K. J. Henry and H. H. Turner, clerks in the department have been suspended.

TRACKLAYING.

A LARGE number of the citizens went out on Thursday and Friday to see the operation of tracklaying on the railway. The two boarding cars—huge three story buildings on wheels, in which the tracklaying gang eat and sleep—with several flat cars loaded with rails, others with ties and another with joining or “fish” plates, bolts and nuts, form a train which is shoved by the engine as near the end of the finished track as may be. Five or six teams haul up the ties one after the other and haul them along the dump to be distributed in their proper places. Two men unload each wagon as it comes up, while others lay the ties in their places as quickly as may be, about sixteen men being employed in the work. While the ties have been in process of handling the tracklayers have been loading a heavy hand car with rails. A horse attached to the car by a long rope hauls it along to the end of the last pair of rails. Two parties of men then seize a rail from each side of the car and drop them in their places on the ties. While this operation is being repeated by two other parties one man with an iron measure adjusts the rails to the proper distance apart and the horse pulls the car forward on the loosely laid rails. As the car passes the joining plates, bolts and nuts are taken off and put in place by five pairs of men, joining the rails firmly together end to end. As fast as the rails are joined together they are lined and adjusted; and following closely come ten pairs of spikers who drive two pairs of spikes into each tie, holding the rails firmly in place. As fast as the rails on the hand car are unloaded the horse hauls it back to the flat cars for a new load, and the operation is repeated. There are thus four separate gangs of men working to keep ahead of or catch up to each other. The tie men must keep out of the way of those who handle the rails. They must not be caught by the men putting in the bolts and they must keep out of the way of the spikers. Everything moves like clock work and the motion is rapid; as it must be to securely lay two miles of rails in a day. There are about sixty to seventy-five men employed in the several operations of track-laying.

INCORPORATION.

A public meeting to discuss the question of the incorporation of the town of Edmonton was held according to announcement on Thursday evening in Ross hall; M. McCauley chairman, C. D. T. Becher secretary.

The chairman stated the object of the meeting and called upon any person present who wished to express his views.

Thos. Anderson said he did not think the time had come to incorporate. The town was too scattered and the population too small. When the population had increased to one or two thousand he would favor incorporation but not till then. It incorporation were forced upon the town now some poor settlers who had large claims but very little money would have their land eaten up in taxes. He mentioned several large property holders as being opposed to incorporation. If the town were incorporated salaried officials would have to be employed and taxes would become very burdensome. When Mr. Hamilton of the C. P. R. was asked last summer about incorporation he said it was nonsense. He advised the meeting to stamp it down.

C. F. Strang said that several of the property holders mentioned by the previous speaker as being against incorporation would not be included in the town in any case.

J. Knowles moved seconded by W. L. Wood that it was desirable to have the boundaries of the proposed town defined before the advisability of incorporation be discussed, so that people could know what they were voting for and who had a right to vote.

H. S. Young said that the H. B. Co. thought incorporation premature but would not oppose it if the citizens desired it. He would like the meeting to express an opinion for or against incorporation.

The motion was carried by a large majority.

C. F. Strang moved seconded by R. Strachan that a committee consisting of E. Carty, J. Cameron, J. A. McDougall, M. McCauley, F. Oliver, D. McLeod, D. Ross, S. S. Taylor and W. S. Robertson be appointed to define the limits of the proposed town and report at a meeting to be held in Ross hall one month from date—the limits as proposed to be advertised in the BULLETIN before that date. Carried unanimously.

Considerable desultory discussion followed in which it was asserted and denied that the meeting had declared for incorporation. It was finally decided on motion of S. S. Taylor that the meeting had not expressed an opinion for or against incorporation, feeling that it would be inadvisable to do so until the limits to be incorporated were defined.

The meeting then adjourned.

The committee on boundaries will hold a first meeting in Ross hall on Tuesday evening next.

NEW TOWN SITE.

The survey of the new town site is in progress under the management of J. McArthur, the engineer Mr. Bemister, not having yet returned from Calgary. The plan of survey is on north and south and east and west. The town is to be laid out in the proportions irrespective of their boundaries. Two streets 100 feet wide extending to the extreme boundaries of the properties cross each other at right angles a short distance north of the station. The streets running north and south are on the line between river lots 11 and 13, the property of Joe Macdonald and Tom A. Anderson respectively. All other streets run parallel to the river. The river is about 100 feet wide. The lots are 33x132 feet, laid out in blocks which lie lengthwise east and west, making the lots lie north and south; with some variations near the station. The lots about 100 feet wide, and the width of the track being improved first will probably be first placed on the market.

COOKING LANE.

MESSRS. John Brown, W. S. Robertson, E. Baymer, Geo. Thomson, F. A. Osborne, J. R. Michael, J. A. Belden, W. Stephens and Mr. Street, were on Saturday, June 24th, for Cooking lake, the Beaver hills, for the purpose of exploring the lake in a salt boat and shortening and improving the road leading to it from Edmonton, in the interests of sport and pleasure. They returned on Monday evening. Cooking lake is situated in the heart of the Beaver hills about 15 miles a little south of east from town. It is some ten miles long and three wide with beautiful rocky walls, fine timber, and many beaver traps. As a place for duck shooting, in season, sailing, bathing or camping it is unequalled in the country. There are many fine hay meadows along the shores, that afford excellent feed for the stock. The road to the lake from town passes L. Fulton's ranch near the head of the Mill creek and runs through a belt of country having many excellent homestead locations. The land is very good, but set in about eight miles from town. The hills are high, amount to nothing as hills, and the timber with which they were formerly covered has been greatly thinned out by fires, making the country much more passable, and more easily available for farming purposes.

The regular subscription price of the Farmer is $1 a year, but by special arrangement the BULLETIN is enabled to furnish it to Northwest farmers to subscribe to this paper at $1 a year.

Subscribe now or at any time and get the best local newspaper in the Northwest and best agricultural paper in the world for the Northwest at $2.00 a year.
